Alpha-synuclein & Parkinson's disease: Lessons from the past 20 years

PRESENTATION

Synucleinopathies are disorders characterized by the accumulation and spreading of the protein  $\alpha$ -synuclein in the nervous system. These disorders include a broad spectrum of diseases characterized by parkinsonism, dementia and dysautonomia such Parkinson's disease or multiple system atrophy.

In the framework of the 20-year anniversary of the discovery of the link between the  $\alpha$ -synuclein gene and familial Parkinson's disease, and of the presence of  $\alpha$ -synuclein aggregates as the neuropathological hallmark of the disease, the planned Conference in Barcelona aims to provide an update on essential aspects of the various synucleinopathies including genetics and neuropathology, with strong emphasis in latest basic science developments on normal and pathological  $\alpha$ -synuclein. The role of  $\alpha$ -synuclein as a biomarker and as a target for ongoing and novel therapeutic strategies will be reviewed.

The event will constitute a unique opportunity for the interaction of experts from different fields related to  $\alpha$ -synuclein and its pathology.
